QUESTIONS, ANSWERS & FACTS ABOUT THE WILDLIFE NATIONAL VALUE GUIDE

THE FIRE THAT CHANGED IT ALL: On 05/29/98 – the Wildlife factory burnt to the ground. Since it was a total loss, all of the information contained herein had to be assembled and estimated from past newsletters, catalogs, records salvaged off of back-up computer discs as well as from the memories of the Vernon's & their associates.

WHY DID SO MANY STYLES RETIRE AS OF THE FIRE (5/29/98)? Bill had many originals kept off premises and could have brought back all of the styles in production at the time of the fire. Instead, he elected to allow 05/29/98 to serve as a "mass retirement" date. This was done in the interest of collectors in an effort to further enhance the value of their collections as we made a fresh start.

WHO DECIDES WHAT RETIRES AND WHEN? This is strictly Bill's decision. As you see, all sculptures show extremely low production numbers as their "lives" were cut short by the fire. Think of it...the estimated quantities produced are ALL that were or ever will be produced worldwide! Scarcity, supply and demand drive secondary market values. Chances are that you'll continue to see Bill surprise everyone with early retirements, enhancing values even further. No one will know which pieces he will retire early so serious collectors are advised to try and keep one of each sculpture in their collections.

THIS GUIDE TRACKS RETIRED PIECES ONLY: This guide is published solely as a service to dealers and collectors advising them as to the estimated production quantities and the estimated secondary market values of each of the retired sculptures based on our opinion. Refer to a current newsletter / catalog and price list for new releases and all styles that are currently in production.

ESTIMATED SECONDARY MARKET VALUES:

The values contained herein reflect our opinion as to what a buyer should pay or a seller should ask for a retired piece in good condition based on the overall quantity produced. This guide is meant to serve only as a foundation point from which to start bidding or trading.

ESTIMATED QUANTITY PRODUCED: All we could do was make an "educated guess" as to how many of each piece was produced. All formal inventory records were destroyed in the fire but we feel that the quantities estimated herein are a very close estimate.

EDITIONS – WHAT' ARE THEY?

A piece goes into a different "edition" status (First, Second, or Third) in the event changes are made to the original design. This is exactly the case with certain styles brought back after the fire. Sculptures that are in second edition are clearly marked in the mold so they are easily identified. Our advise to collectors is; if you already own a first edition of a sculpture that has now entered second edition status, there is no real need to acquire both editions unless you are striving to include every sculpture we make in your collection.
